When is compensation available?

The applicant must first exhaust all other remedies reasonably available, including but not limited to:

Health Insurance
Life Insurance
Medicare
Public Aid

Workers Compensation
Veterans Benefits
Social Security Benefits

In certain instances, applicants may be eligible for an emergency award of up to $2,000 for expenses covered under the Crime Victim Compensation Act. The amount of emergency compensation shall be deducted from any final award made as the result of a claim. The amount of emergency compensation for funeral and burial expenses may not exceed $1,000.

What do I have to do to be eligible?

1. Report the crime to the authorities within 72 hours or within 7 days for sexually related offenses.
2. Cooperate with the law enforcement officers.
3. File a compensation claim within two (2) years of the crime.

In addition, the applicant can not be an offender or an accomplice of the offender. The applicant also must not have contributed to the victim's injury/death by engaging in wrongful conduct or provocation.

How does the process work?

- Office of the Attorney General

Applicant must provide any and all requested information related to the crime to the Office of the Attorney General (OAG). The OAG will investigate and verify information contained in the application, and may request applicants to appear for a personal interview. The OAG conducts all inquiries in strict confidence.

- Court of Claims

After completion of the investigation, a report is submitted to the Court of Claims. The Court will make a decision based upon the application and the report, or order the claim be set for a hearing. The Court of Claims is the final decision maker in all Crime Victims Compensation cases.
